CONTRIBUTORS’ COLUMN

JEANNINE CARPENTER is a Ph.D. candidate in the Duke University and North Carolina State University cooperative program in English Sociolinguistics. Her primary research interests are in regional developments of African American English and conversational style.

JANE MANSBRIDGE is the Adams Professor at the Kennedy School of Government at Harvard University. She is author of Beyond Adversary Democracy (New York: Basic Books, 1980) and Why We Lost the ERA (Chicago: Univ. of Chicago Press, 1986), editor of Beyond Self-Interest (Chicago: Univ. of Chicago Press, 1990), coeditor (with Susan Moller Okin) of Feminism (Aldershot, Eng.: Elgar, 1994), and coeditor (with Aldon D. Morris) of Oppositional Consciousness (Chicago: University of Chicago Press, 2001).

KATHERINE FLASTER is a member of the Inequality and Social Policy Program at the Kennedy School of Government at Harvard University. She earned her B.A. at Wellesley College in political science and will be pursuing a law degree.

SALI TAGLIAMONTE is associate professor of linguistics at the University of Toronto. Her research focuses on variation and change in the evolution of English. Currently, she is investigating teen language and morphosyntactic developments in apparent time in Toronto English.

CHRIS ROBERTS is a graduate student at the University of Toronto. His interest in media language comes from his interdisciplinary interests in cultural anthropology and sociolinguistics.
EDITORIAL POLICY

American Speech is concerned principally with the English language in the Western Hemisphere, although contributions dealing with English in other parts of the world, with other languages influencing English or influenced by it, and with general linguistic theory may also be submitted for consideration by the Editorial Board. The journal welcomes articles dealing with current usage, dialectology, and the history and structure of English. American Speech is not committed to any particular theoretical framework, but preference is given to articles that are likely to be of interest to a wide readership.

MANUSCRIPTS FOR PUBLICATION

Books for review, manuscripts of articles for American Speech, and studies of monograph length for the Publication of the American Dialect Society series should be addressed to Charles E. Carson, Managing Editor, American Dialect Society Publications, Duke University, Box 90018, Durham NC 27708-0018 (e-mail: amspeech@dukeupress.edu). Send items for possible inclusion in “Among the New Words” to Wayne Glowka, Department of English and Speech, Georgia College and State University, Milledgeville GA 31061-0490.

Three copies of a manuscript should be submitted. Authors should retain a copy, as manuscripts will not be returned. Manuscripts should be prepared in conformity with The Chicago Manual of Style (15th ed., 2003). Documentation must be given in the text itself using the author-date system (chap. 16), with a list of references at the end prepared in the humanities style. Endnotes should be on separate sheets before the references list. Figures, tables, and graphic materials must be suitable for typesetting or photographic reproduction and should be placed on separate sheets at the end of the manuscript.

Citation forms are to be italicized and glosses enclosed in single quotation marks, without intervening punctuation (e.g., hushpuppy ‘fried corn bread’). Technical terms and emphasized words should be indicated by double underlining for SMALL CAPITALS, rather than by italics. Phonetic and phonic transcription should be restricted to the symbols of the International Phonetic Alphabet. Word lists should be prepared in accordance with the “Style Sheet for Glossaries” (American Speech 45 [1970]: 141–51).
