CONTRIBUTORS’ COLUMN

SALI A. TAGLIAMONTE is a professor in the Department of Linguistics at the University of Toronto. She is author of Analysing Sociolinguistic Variation (Cambridge: Cambridge Univ. Press, 2006) and coauthor of African American English in the Diaspora: Tense and Aspect (with Shana Poplack, Malden, Mass.: Blackwell, 2001). She has published on African American varieties; British, Irish, and Canadian dialects; teen language; and television. Her ongoing research focuses on morphosyntactic and discourse-pragmatic features using cross-variety and apparent-time comparisons in synchronic corpora to explore linguistic change.

DEREK DENIS is a senior undergraduate student and master’s candidate at the University of Toronto. He is also research assistant in the University of Toronto’s Sociolinguistics and Language Variation and Change Lab. His current research focuses on morphosyntactic variation and its inference with theoretical linguistics.

DAVID BOWIE is assistant professor of linguistics and English language at the University of Central Florida. In addition to his work on Utah English, he is investigating how phonetic production changes over the course of the adult lifespan.

ERIK SCHLEEF received his Ph.D. from the University of Michigan and is a lecturer in the Department of Linguistics and English Language at the University of Edinburgh. His research interests include language and gender, intercultural discourse and communication, language variation and change in British and American English, and discourse analysis. He is an active member on the Executive Committee of the British Association for Applied Linguistics and has lived and taught in the United States, Great Britain, Germany, and Switzerland.
EDITORIAL POLICY

American Speech is concerned principally with the English language in the Western Hemisphere, although contributions dealing with English in other parts of the world, with other languages influencing English or influenced by it, and with general linguistic theory may also be submitted for consideration by the Editorial Board. The journal welcomes articles dealing with current usage, dialectology, and the history and structure of English. American Speech is not committed to any particular theoretical framework, but preference is given to articles that are likely to be of interest to a wide readership.

MANUSCRIPTS FOR PUBLICATION

Books for review, manuscripts of articles for American Speech, and studies of monograph length for the Publication of the American Dialect Society series should be addressed to Charles E. Carson, Managing Editor, American Speech, Duke University Press, 905 W. Main St. Ste. 18B, Durham NC 27701-2075 (e-mail: amspeech@dukeupress.edu). Send items for possible inclusion in “Among the New Words” to Wayne Glowka, Department of English and Speech, Georgia College and State University, Milledgeville GA 31061-0490.

Three copies of a manuscript should be submitted. Authors should retain a copy, as manuscripts will not be returned. Manuscripts should be prepared in conformity with The Chicago Manual of Style (15th ed., 2003). Documentation must be given in the text itself using the author-date system (chap. 16), with a list of references at the end prepared in the humanities style. Endnotes should be on separate sheets before the references list. Figures, tables, and graphic materials must be suitable for typesetting or photographic reproduction and should be placed on separate sheets at the end of the manuscript.

Citation forms are to be italicized and glosses enclosed in single quotation marks, without intervening punctuation (e.g., hushpuppy ‘fried corn bread’). Technical terms and emphasized words should be indicated by double underlining for small capitals, rather than by italics. Phonetic and phonemic transcriptions should be restricted to the symbols of the International Phonetic Alphabet. Word lists should be prepared in accordance with the “Style Sheet for Glossaries” (American Speech 45 [1970]: 141–51).
