Camera Obscura provides a forum for scholarship and debate on feminism, culture, and media studies. The journal encourages contributions in areas such as the conjunctions of gender, race, class, and sexuality with audiovisual culture; new histories and theories of film, television, video, and digital media; and politically engaged approaches to a range of media practices.

Contributor Information
Camera Obscura seeks substantial essays (approximately 6,500–9,000 words, including endnotes and references) that engage with current academic and popular debates in feminism, culture, and media studies. We encourage potential contributors to browse recent issues of the journal for examples of the types of scholarship we currently seek.

Camera Obscura is also interested in short pieces (750–2,500 words) on current media practices, practitioners, resources, events, or issues for the section “In Practice: Feminism/Culture/Media.” The editors encourage authors to use the short format to experiment with form in a critical context. The section includes solicited contributions and open submissions, with the intention of enriching dialogue between feminist media scholarship and the practices—production, distribution, exhibition, organizing, curating, archiving, research, and so on—that sustain it.

Please submit one electronic copy (as a Microsoft Word e-mail attachment to cameraobscura@filmandmedia.ucsb.edu) of the manuscript with a cover letter. Manuscripts should be double-spaced and use endnotes. Camera Obscura’s documentation style follows The Chicago Manual of Style, 16th ed., chap. 15.

Camera Obscura, Department of Film and Media Studies, University of California, Santa Barbara, CA 93106-4010; fax: 805-893-8630; e-mail: cameraobscura@filmandmedia.ucsb.edu.

Camera Obscura is distributed by Ubiquity Distributors, 607 DeGraw St., Brooklyn, NY 11217; phone: 718-875-5491; fax: 718-875-8047.

Indexing and Abstract Listings
For a list of sources in which Camera Obscura is indexed and abstracted, see www.dukeupress.edu/cameraobscura.

© 2017 by Camera Obscura
ISSN 0270-5346
IN THIS ISSUE

Parenting through Horror: Reassurance in Jennifer Kent’s The Babadook
Aviva Briefel

Selling a Rebellion: The Industrial Logic of Mainstream Alt-Porn
Jennifer Moorman

Trauma, Shame, and Men’s Tears in The Manchurian Candidate
Joy McEntee

“Little girls and the things that they love”: My Little Pony: Friendship Is Magic, Audience, Identity, and the Privilege of Contemporary Fan Culture
Ewan Kirkland

Violence and the Gaze in Catherine Breillat’s Fat Girl (À ma sœur!)
Ora Gelley

In Practice

In Practice: Queerness and Games
Diana Pozo, Bonnie Ruberg, and Chris Goetz

Creating an Archive of LGBTQ Video Game Content: An Interview with Adrienne Shaw
Bonnie Ruberg

Conferences, Conventions, Conversations, and Coffee
Dietrich Squinkifer

Everything Is Wiped Away: Queer Temporality in Queers in Love at the End of the World
Claudia Lo

Cover: Margie Schnibbe/Vena Virago’s business card. © Margie Schnibbe