THE BRIDGE OF TRANSLATION

GUEST EDITED BY FAITH JONES

Translations from German, French, Hungarian, Hebrew, and Yiddish, as well as essays about translation and reflections on particular translation projects, come together in this collection to illuminate feminist Jewish practice. Translated material includes stories, poems, letters, diaries, and fables in a rich blend of genres, styles, and subject matter. This diverse collection speaks to the centrality of translation for creating an inclusive Jewish feminist movement. It explores a variety of ideas about the historical pressures resulting from the multilingual nature of Jewish culture, with careful attention to how women’s use of language(s) is marked and meaningful.
