Sexual Fields
Toward a Sociology of Collective Sexual Life
Edited by Adam Isaiah Green
“Sexual Fields is certainly a book that every scholar of sexuality should own, and I would not be surprised if this were to become one of the most cited volumes in the field of sexuality.”—Verta Taylor, coauthor of Drag Queens at the 801 Cabaret

Blessing Same-Sex Unions
The Perils of Queer Romance and the Confusions of Christian Marriage
Mark D. Jordan
“One of the great strengths of this examination is Jordan’s . . . ability to point to the odd and sometimes surprising confluence of commercialism, homophobia, Christian theology, state power, and sexism (to name just a few) embedded in so many of the contemporary discourses of gay marriage.”
—Thomas A. Foster, H-Net Book Review

Pleading in the Blood
The Art and Performances of Ron Athey
Edited by Dominic Johnson
With a Foreword by Antony Hegarty
In his frequently bloody portrayals of life, death, crisis, and fortitude in the time of AIDS, Ron Athey calls into question the limits of artistic practice. These limits enable Athey to explore key themes including gender, sexuality, radical sex, queer activism, post-punk and industrial culture, tattooing and body modification, ritual, and religion.
Cloth $35.00
“Wonderful. . . . Maupin’s last novel in the Tales of the City series is as compulsively readable and endearing as all the previous novels have been.”
—Booklist (starred review)

“The ninth Tales of the City installment is Maupin’s farewell to his beloved cast of characters. . . . Maupin’s flare for dialogue and fully realized contemporary characterizations is again on display. . . . This installment is a memorable, satisfying capstone to his series.”

Duke University Press mourns the loss of a beloved editor, author, contributor, and collaborator.

“More than the loss of a major scholar, but of someone who rethought and reconfigured fields, supported countless other scholars, and made so much work possible by influence and by example. He cannot be replaced.”

—Ken Wissoker, Editorial Director
