RECLAIMING THE AUTHOR: FIGURES AND FICTIONS FROM SPANISH AMERICA

Lucille Kerr

"[This book] offers a fresh view of certain Spanish-American novels . . . presenting them as texts in which the question of the author/authority is an essential part of their narrative structure. In doing so, it offers a new angle for the critical reading of these works and reveals a rich field for intellectual debate." —Jose Miguel Oviedo, University of Pennsylvania

THE MONSTERED SELF: NARRATIVES OF DEATH AND PERFORMANCE IN LATIN AMERICAN FICTION

Eduardo González

"Working at the intersection of mythography, psychoanalysis and Latin American narrative, Eduardo González has written a brilliant book. In the Hispanic field I can think of no one who compares fairly with his sheer range and mastery of these fields of research."

Mesoamerican Writing Systems
Propaganda, Myth, and History in Four Ancient Civilizations
Joyce Marcus

In this anthropological study of the role of hieroglyphic writing in the prehispanic Aztec, Mixtec, Zapotec, and Maya states, Joyce Marcus contends that ancient Mesoamerican writing was a tool used by an elite minority in their competition for leadership, prestige, territory, tribute, and advantageous marriages.

Marcus convincingly demonstrates that while it may have been based on actual persons and events, this body of prehistoric writing is a deliberately created tangle of what we could call propaganda, myth, and fact, written for political purposes, and not reliable "history" in a modern sense.

"A brilliant work, carefully reasoned and effectively argued, but balanced and not overstated. The scholarship is truly outstanding."
—E. Wyllys Andrews V, Tulane University

"A masterful piece of work. We are in the presence of a tour de force."—Robert L. Carneiro, American Museum of Natural History

Shattered Hope
The Guatemalan Revolution and the United States, 1944-1954
Piero Gleijeses

"Extensively researched and written with conviction and passion, this study analyzes the history and downfall of what seems in retrospect to have been Guatemala's best government, the short-lived regime of Jacobo Arbenz, overthrown in 1954, by a CIA-orchestrated coup."—Foreign Affairs

"This book is arguably the best monograph written on modern Central American politics in any language."

Literatura y Sociedad Latino-americanas del siglo XIX
Edited by Evelyn Picon Garfield and Ivan A. Schulman

Drawn from a joint U.S.-Soviet symposium on Latin American literature, this volume's Spanish-language text explores a broad spectrum of post-colonial literatures, their historical heritages and prefigurations of the twentieth-century texts.

"This remarkable book offers new and fresh readings of Latin American cultural history. . . . [and] renews the current debate on the literary formation in postcolonial societies." — Julio Ortega, author of Poetics of Change: The New Spanish-American Narrative. $34.95

Slaves, Peasants, and Rebels
Reconsidering Brazilian Slavery
Stuart B. Schwartz

An award-winning historian offers revisionist views of some of the most controversial issues related to Brazilian slavery in a book that will be of special interest to all historians of slavery in the Americas. Central to the volume is the role slaves played in shaping their own lives and in the construction and operation of the Brazilian slave system. Schwartz reconsiders the themes of work, resistance, kinship, and the relationship between slaves and masters that constantly shaped the contours of Brazilian society. A volume in the series Blacks in the New World, edited by August Meier and John Bracey. $34.95

Portraits from the Age of Exploration
Selections from André Thevet's Les vrais pourtraits et vies des hommes illustres
André Thevet
Edited by Roger Schlesinger
Translated by Edward Benson

"Thevet's portraits of twelve illustrious sixteenth-century men — six explorers and six Amerindian leaders — gives a fascinating picture of the European mentality during the period when the Old and New Worlds were first meeting each other. The inclusion of Amerindians was an extraordinary tour-de-force in an age when Europeans were inclined to view New World men as curiosities rather than as equals. These selections provide valuable insight for those interested in Renaissance studies, whether literary, historical, anthropological or geographical." — Olive Dickason, University of Alberta. A FOREIGN POLICY IN TRANSITION

Moscow's Retreat from Central America and the Caribbean, 1985–1992

JAN S. ADAMS

"The overall question of Soviet policy in the Caribbean basin and Central America is one to which relatively little attention has been devoted in the past. Adams presents a comprehensive picture of that policy with primary emphasis on changes that have occurred in recent years. [It is] the most current and comprehensive presentation of the subject available." —Roger E. Kanet, University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign

A Foreign Policy in Transition charts the changing Soviet policies toward Central America and the Caribbean during the Gorbachev years, examines the effects of these policies in individual countries, and looks to the role that Russia and the other Soviet-successor states will play in this region in the 1990s.
