FEMINISM FOR THE AMERICAS
The Making of an International Human Rights Movement
Katherine M. Marino
“Marino’s entirely new history of advocacy for equal rights treaties by feminists of the Americas builds on her stupendous research on two continents in three languages. This is the most convincing case I have ever seen for decentering the United States in transnational history in order to tell the full story.”
—Nancy F. Cott, author of Public Vows: A History of Marriage and the Nation 268 pages $34.95

RICE IN THE TIME OF SUGAR
The Political Economy of Food in Cuba
Louis A. Pérez Jr.
“In this cogent and accessible study of the political economy of food in Cuba, Pérez makes perfectly clear the challenges of a country’s economic dependence on one crop, as well as the larger social, political, and international implications of that dependence.”
—Robert Whitney, University of New Brunswick
272 pages $29.95 paper

THE INVENTION OF THE FAVELA
Lícia do Prado Valladares
Translated by Robert N. Anderson
“Valladares challenges all of us scholars to question our assumptions regarding favelas, to stop relying on myths as shorthand for more complex historical explanations, and to acknowledge that favelas can no longer be understood as the precinct of the urban poor. I expect the book to be assigned widely”
—Bryan McCann, Georgetown University

HAYA DE LA TORRE AND THE PURSUIT OF POWER IN TWENTIETH-CENTURY PERU AND LATIN AMERICA
Iñigo García-Bryce
“Why haven’t we had a serious biography of Haya de la Torre before? García-Bryce reveals the spectacular international presence wielded by Haya and his party, APRA, in the mid-twentieth century. Haya’s exiles and writings take us from Peru to England to Mexico to Central America and beyond, leaving an enormous political legacy only now getting the attention it deserves.”
—Charles F. Walker, University of California, Davis

THE PEOPLE OF THE RIVER
Nature and Identity in Black Amazonia, 1835–1945
Oscar de la Torre
“Offering important theoretical interventions and a compelling narrative, de la Torre demonstrates the fascinating range of ways that black Amazonians related to their environments at both physical and discursive levels. This book reveals how their gradual acquisition of prized environmental knowledge played into economic relationships and served a key role in their search of autonomy, identity, and citizenship.”

THE MEXICAN PRESS AND CIVIL SOCIETY, 1940–1976
Stories from the Newsroom, Stories from the Street
Benjamin T. Smith
“A pathbreaking book that analyzes the role of the Mexican press—both national and provincial—during the formation and heyday of the PRIista state, convincingy arguing that newspapers were much more diverse and influential than commonly believed. This book fills a big gap and sheds a bright light on the politics of the PRI, especially some of its shadier corners.”

The Fifteenth Month
Aztec History in the Rituals of Panquetzaliztli
By John F. Schwaller

The Mexica (Aztecs) used a solar calendar made up of eighteen months, with each month dedicated to a specific god in their pantheon and celebrated with a different set of rituals. Panquetzaliztli, the fifteenth month, dedicated to the national god Huitzilopochtli, was significant for its proximity to the winter solstice, and for the fact that it marked the beginning of the season of warfare. In The Fifteenth Month, John F. Schwaller offers a detailed look at how the celebrations of Panquetzaliztli changed over time and what these changes reveal about the history of the Aztecs.

Independence in Central America and Chiapas, 1770-1823
By Aaron Pollack and Nancy Hancock

Central America was the only part of the far-reaching Spanish Empire in continental America not to experience destructive independence wars in the period between 1810 and 1824. The essays in this volume draw on new historical research to explain why, and to delve into what did happen during the independence period in Central America and Chiapas. The contributors, distinguished scholars from Central America, North America, and Europe, consider themes of power, rebellion, sovereignty, and resistance throughout the Kingdom of Guatemala beginning in the late eighteenth century and ending with independence from Spain and the debate surrounding the decision to join the Mexican Empire.

The Chicana/o Education Pipeline: History, Institutional Critique, and Resistance
Edited by Michaela J. L. Mares-Tamayo and Daniel G. Solórzano

This collection considers the relationships between Chicana/o students, families, and communities and the school settings that make up the Chicana/o education pipeline. Topics include bilingual education, the high school walkouts, Latinas in higher education, anti–ethnic studies legislation, and Jotería identity. The essays, which appeared in Aztlán: A Journal of Chicano Studies between 1970 and 2015, were chosen for their potential to spark discussions about Chicana/o experiences and resilience in US schools.
