Contents

After Samuelson, Who Needs Adam Smith? Kenneth E. Boulding 225
Some Implications of Adam Smith’s Analysis of Investment Priorities Samuel Hollander 238
Smith’s Travels on the Ship of State George J. Stigler 265
An Interpretation of Walras’ Theory of Capital as a Model of Economic Growth William D. Montgomery 278
Marx on Value, Capital, and Exploitation Arun Bose 298
The Day Karl Marx Grew Up Murray Wolfson 335
The Wicksell Effects in Wicksell and in Modern Capital Theory C. E. Ferguson and Donald L. Hooks 353
Chapman on the Remuneration of Employers R. W. Pfouts 373
The Backbending Supply Curve of Labor: An Example of Doctrinal Retrogression? James M. Buchanan 383
On the Structure of Scientific Revolutions in Economics Leonard Kunin and F. Stirton Weaver 391
The President, the Constitution, and the Economist in Economic Stabilization Neil H. Jacoby 398
Two Letters from James Mill to Jean-Baptiste Say Arnold Heertje 415
Some Recent Developments in the History of Economic Thought in the United States Vincent J. Tarascio 419
Bibliographical Note: M. I. Tugan-Baranovsky 432