Without question World Policy Journal is in a class by itself.
—Victor Navasky, The Nation

The real intellectual competition to Foreign Affairs.
—Columbia Journalism Review

For over thirty years, World Policy Journal has been home to both distinguished and emerging thinkers from around the globe. Its articles inject new ideas into international debates on the world’s most pressing issues. The journal is also known for lively, intelligent writing that challenges conventional wisdom with fresh perspectives on underreported issues.

Named after the Jewish concept of mending and transforming a fragmented world, Tikkun offers analysis and commentary that strive to bridge the cultural divide between religious and secular progressives. The magazine provides rigorous and unconventional critiques of politics, spirituality, social theory, and culture. Tikkun is recognized for its coverage of the Israel/Palestine conflict, social justice issues, and the environment.

Common Knowledge is devoted to what its editors have termed “civilian scholarship.” Its mission is to open lines of communication between the academy and the community of thoughtful people outside its walls. The journal, whose “variety of material and opinions gives it a pleasing heterogeneity” (Times Literary Supplement), challenges the ways we think about theory and its relevance to humanity.
