Doris Gray teaches in the Women’s Studies Program and the Department of Modern Languages-French and Francophone Studies at Florida State University in Tallahassee. She taught at Al Akhawayn University in Morocco for two years. Prior to entering academia, she worked for more than a decade as a foreign correspondent based in Kenya and South Africa. Her research interest is on women in Africa, including North Africa, African women in the diaspora, social and cultural change, and Islam.

Kamran Rastegar is a lecturer in Arabic and Persian at the University of Edinburgh. He has previously taught in the Department of Comparative Literature at Brown University and researches the cultural histories of the modern Middle East and Europe, with a particular interest in social conflict and literature in the late nineteenth and twentieth centuries. He also researches topics relating to contemporary cinemas of Iran and the Arab world.

Ishak Saporta is a senior lecturer in the Faculty of Management at Tel Aviv University. His research interests include discrimination in employment, industrial relations, and stratification in education. His work has been published in the American Journal of Sociology, Industrial Relations, and Work and Occupations.

Cyrus Schayegh is an assistant professor of modern Middle Eastern history at the American University of Beirut. His research interests include the history of biomedical and social sciences and of social transformations in modern Iran, as well as the history of smuggling and state and border formations in Mandatory Lebanon and Palestine.
Yossi Yonah is an associate professor in the Department of Education at Ben Gurion University and a senior research fellow with the Jerusalem Van Leer Institute. Professor Yonah’s research interests include moral and political philosophy, the philosophy of education, and multiculturalism. His recent book, In Virtue of Difference: The Multicultural Project in Israel, was published in 2005.
SUBMISSION GUIDELINES

Manuscripts must be based on original research and the careful analysis of archival and other primary source materials. Manuscripts are evaluated with the understanding that they have not been published elsewhere in any language, are not under consideration for publication, or part of a book that will be published in the near future. A full listing of our submission guidelines can be found at http://iupjournals.org.

Books for review should be sent to the editorial office for forwarding to reviewers. Unsolicited book reviews will also be considered for publication.

Any material being sent through regular mail should be addressed to JMEWS, Center for the Study of Women, Rolfe 2225, University of California, Los Angeles, CA 90095–1540. E-mail submissions should be sent to jmews@women.ucla.edu.

GENERAL

A manuscript must be in English and cannot exceed 30 81/2" × 11" or A4 double-spaced pages in 12 pt. font (including main text, notes, tables, figure captions, and references). The margins should be one inch on all sides. References should be numbered consecutively.

If submitting via regular mail, authors should submit one hard copy of the manuscript and one electronic copy on diskette in PC format and standard word-processing program. If submitting via e-mail, authors should submit an electronic copy as well as a land mail address.

All submissions must include a cover sheet that includes the author’s name, institutional affiliation, land mail address, telephone and fax numbers, and e-mail address. The title alone should be centered at the top of the first text page. JMEWS conforms to the Chicago Manual of Style, 15th edition.

Do not use software to mark diacriticals. Transliteration follows a modified International Journal of Middle East Studies system, which is detailed on our web site. The editor may find it necessary to return manuscripts for reworking or retyping that do not conform to these requirements.

Use a five-character (one tab stop) paragraph indent. Avoid hyphenating words at the end of lines. Do not use desktop publishing features (e.g., right margin justification or bold and italic typefaces). Block indent long quotations (more than 50 words). Never cross-reference.

JMEWS references conform to the social sciences referencing style found in American Anthropologist. Nested indentation must be used, i.e., the date and title are indented, and then indented again. Examples can be found at http://iupjournals.org/jmews.

COPYRIGHT AND ORIGINALITY

Submission of a manuscript implies that it has not been simultaneously submitted or previously published elsewhere. Authors are responsible for obtaining permission to publish any material under copyright. Contributors will be asked to assign their own copyright to the Association for Middle East Women’s Studies.
McMillan-Stewart Chair in the Study of Women in the Developing World

MIT's School of Humanities, Arts, and Social Sciences seeks an outstanding scholar and teacher for the Geneviève McMillan-Reba Stewart Chair in the Study of Women in the Developing World, to start Fall 2007. Candidates' principal scholarship and teaching should focus on the study of women and gender in the Middle East and/or North Africa. Candidates should also demonstrate a strong familiarity with comparative and interdisciplinary approaches to the study of women and gender.

It is preferred that candidates for the McMillan-Stewart Chair be qualified for a tenured faculty appointment in one of the following academic departments and programs located in the MIT School of Humanities, Arts, and Social Sciences: Anthropology; Comparative Media Studies, Foreign Languages and Literatures, History, Literature, Music and Theatre Arts, Political Science, Science, Technology and Society, and Writing and Humanistic Studies. It is expected that the appointee will teach courses in his or her specific department and in the MIT Women's Studies Program.

Candidates should submit a letter of application, curriculum vitae, and the names, mailing addresses (including email addresses) and telephone numbers of three references, by November 1, 2006 to:

McMillan-Stewart Chair Search Committee, Dean's Office, School of Humanities, Arts and Social Sciences, Massachusetts Institute of Technology, Bldg. E51-255, 77 Massachusetts Avenue, Cambridge, MA 02139-4307

MIT is an Equal Opportunity/Affirmative Action Employer and encourages applications from qualified women and members of minority groups.

For more information about the MIT School of Humanities, Arts, and Social Sciences please go to: http://web.mit.edu/shass/