KNOCKING ON LABOR'S DOOR

Union Organizing in the 1970s and the Roots of a New Economic Divide

Lane Windham

“Windham takes a fresh look at a phenomenon that many of us thought we understood—the decline of U.S. trade unionism. With meticulous research and graceful prose, she challenges our outworn preconceptions. Her narrative of labor’s recent past deepens our understanding of its present challenges and helps us imagine its future.”

THE LEGEND OF THE BLACK MECCA

Politics and Class in the Making of Modern Atlanta

Maurice J. Hobson

“In this extensive study of the evolution of black Atlanta, Hobson uncovers and closely examines the black Mecca trope and offers a much more nuanced and interesting narrative of Atlanta’s history than the ones we are so accustomed to hearing.”

—Derrick P. Alridge, University of Virginia

BLACK FIREFIGHTERS AND THE FDNY

The Struggle for Jobs, Justice, and Equity in New York City

David Goldberg

“That we can know so much about Black firefighters in one locale—even during early years in which they constituted a literal handful of workers—is both a pleasant surprise and a tribute to the assiduous research of Goldberg in archives and in the mining of oral histories. The characters that emerge here are compelling in a way all too rare in labor history.”

—David Roediger, author of Seizing Freedom

RACE OVER PARTY

Black Politics and Partisanship in Late Nineteenth-Century Boston

Millington W. Bergeson-Lockwood

“A much-needed book. It adds to our understanding of African American politics in the age of Emancipation, but more important, it shifts the focus from the South to the North in the post-Emancipation period, exposing how African Americans in the North used their particular politics to respond to rapidly changing social and political conditions.”

—Shawn Alexander, University of Kansas
