Meridians

great circles of earth passing through the geographical poles at any given point on the earth’s surface; any of the lines of longitude running north and south on a globe or map, representing such a circle or half circle; the highest apparent point reached by a heavenly body in its course; zenith, apex, culmination; places or situations with their own distinctive character;

in Chinese medicine, the major channels carrying the life force through the body.