Nihilism and Belief in Contemporary European Thought
  John Brenkman ......................................................... 1

Bloch, Badiou, Saint Paul, and the Ontology of Not Yet
  Peter Thompson .......................................................... 31

After Individuality: Freud’s Mass Psychology and Weimar Politics
  Stefan Jonsson .......................................................... 53

Rahel Varnhagen: Arendt’s Experiential Ontology
  Kimberly Maslin ......................................................... 77

Between the Tyranny of Opinion and the Despotism of Rational Truth: Arendt on Facts and Acting in Concert
  James Phillips .......................................................... 97

Toward an Expansion of the Critique of the Mahler Revival
  Adam J. Sacks ............................................................. 113

Torture and Masculinity in George Grosz’s Interregnum
  James A. Van Dyke ..................................................... 137

Writing into the Void: Heiner Müller’s Mommsen’s Block as a State of Exception
  Thomas Freeland ......................................................... 167