Contributors

OFER ASHKENAZI teaches modern German history at the Hebrew University of Jerusalem.

STEPHEN BROCKMANN teaches German at Carnegie Mellon University.

JAMES CHAPPEL teaches in the Department of History at Duke University.

JAIMEY FISHER teaches in the Departments of German and of Cinema and Technoculture at the University of California, Davis.

UDI GREENBERG teaches European history at Dartmouth College.

JENS HACKE is a political scientist and historian at the Hamburg Institute for Social Research and teaches political theory at Hamburg University.

NITZAN LEBOVIC teaches in the Department of History and in the Berman Center for Jewish Studies at Lehigh University.

DOUGLAS G. MORRIS is a criminal defense lawyer at Federal Defenders of New York, Inc., and an independent scholar of German legal history.

NOAH B. STROTE teaches European history at North Carolina State University.