Editors’ Introduction: Adorno, Music, Modernity
   Peter E. Gordon and Alexander Rehding ................. 1

Adorno and Musical Nominalism
   Martin Jay ............................................. 5

Wagner through Other Eyes: Parody and the Wit of Brevity in Theodor W. Adorno and Mark Twain
   Lydia Goehr ........................................... 27

Software Physiognomics: Adorno’s Radio Analytics Today
   Martin Scherzinger ..................................... 53

Cloudcuckooland: Adorno’s Musical Utopianism
   Fred Rush .................................................... 73

Phenomenology, Physiognomy, and the “Radio Voice”
   Brian Kane ................................................. 91

Adorno’s Symphonic Space-Time and Beethoven’s Time Travel in Space
   Daniel K. L. Chua ....................................... 113

Riddle-Character, Interpretation, and Dialectical Image:
Adorno’s Philosophy and the Case of Musical Performance
   Max Paddison ............................................. 139

Wounded Modernism: Adorno on Wagner
   Peter E. Gordon .......................................... 155

Adorno’s Hamlet
   George Oppitz-Trotman ..................................... 175

Under Adorno’s Spell: Bann as Fundamental Concept rather than Mere Metaphor
   Christopher Turner ....................................... 203
Contributors

DANIEL K. L. CHUA is professor of music at the University of Hong Kong.

LYDIA GOEHR is professor of philosophy at Columbia University.

PETER E. GORDON is Amabel B. James Professor of History at Harvard University.

MARTIN JAY is Sidney Hellman Ehrman Professor Emeritus of History at the University of California, Berkeley.

BRIAN KANE teaches in the Department of Music at Yale University.

GEORGE OPPITZ-TROTMAN is a Humboldt Research Fellow at the Otto-Friedrich-Universität Bamberg.

MAX PADDISON is emeritus professor of music aesthetics at the University of Durham.

ALEXANDER REHDING is Fanny Peabody Professor of Music at Harvard University.

FRED RUSH teaches philosophy at the University of Notre Dame.

MARTIN SCHERZINGER teaches in the Department of Media, Culture, and Communication at New York University.

CHRISTOPHER TURNER is a PhD candidate in philosophy at DePaul University.

DOI 310.1215/0094033X-3625668