Comparative Literature
The official journal of the American Comparative Literature Association

The oldest journal in its field in the United States, Comparative Literature explores issues in literary history and theory. Drawing on a variety of theoretical and critical approaches, the journal represents a wide-ranging look at the intersections of national literatures, global literary trends, and theoretical discourse.

Although Robert Louis Stevenson was a late Victorian, his work—especially Treasure Island and The Strange Case of Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde—still circulates energetically and internationally among popular and academic audiences and among young and old.

Admired by Henry James, Vladimir Nabokov, and Jorge Luis Borges, Stevenson’s fiction crosses the boundaries of genre and challenges narrow definitions of the modern and the postmodern.

“For teachers of Stevenson from K–12 through graduate study . . . first-rate scholars provide a sophisticated overview of his wide-ranging literary output.”
—Joseph McLaughlin Ohio University
Teaching Literature and Language Online

Edited by Ian Lancashire

“The collection offers those of us who teach literatures and languages online some excellent resources and guidelines for improved pedagogy.”
—Rocky Mountain Review

The pressure to integrate teaching with information technology is strong, as more and more educational institutions are offering blended courses and distance-education learning options.

Contributors in this volume illuminate the realities of teaching language and literature courses online, and describe models for online pedagogies that will be useful to both first-time teachers of online courses and those who are experienced in teaching courses using open-source and blended technologies.
