Special Issue: Teaching Medieval Literature off the Grid
Guest Editors: Gina Brandolino and Nathanial B. Smith

A Note from the Editors | Jennifer L. Holberg and Marcy Taylor 203

Guest Editors’ Introduction | Nathanial B. Smith and Gina Brandolino 205

Articles

Studying Audiences off the Grid
Medieval Prime Time: Entertaining the Family in Fifteenth-Century England — and Educating Students in Twenty-First-Century America | Myra J. Seaman 213

Drinking Feasts and Insult Battles: Bringing Anglo-Saxon Pedagogy into the Contemporary Classroom | Harold C. Zimmerman 229

Critical Pleasure, Visceral Literacy, and the Prik of Conscience | Moira Fitzgibbons 245

Teaching Innocent’s Legacy: Middle English Texts for Commoners | Gina Brandolino 267

Off-the-Grid Authors and Traditions
Loading Jewry into the Medieval Canon | Theodore L. Steinberg 289

The Languages of British Literature and the Stakes of Anthologies | Matthieu Boyd 303

Teaching off the Literary Grid with Hildegard of Bingen’s Physica | Andreea Boboc 321

Thomas Hoccleve’s Particular Appeal | David Watt 337
Off the Grid for Forty Years: Bringing John Gower into the Classroom |
R. F. Yeager 357

Reviews

Re-forming Our Early English Curricula
Review of Form and Reform: Reading across the Fifteenth Century, edited by Shannon Gayk and Kathleen Tonry | Katherine Steele Brokaw 371

Teaching Pilgrimage through Primary Texts

More Than Something on the Side: Teaching Medieval Romance
Review of Pilgrimage in the Middle Ages: A Reader, edited by Brett Edward Whalen | Alex Mueller 379

“We therefore ben tawht of that was write tho”: Teaching Gower in the Classroom
Review of Approaches to Teaching the Poetry of John Gower, edited by R. F. Yeager and Brian W. Gastle | Conrad van Dijk 383

Teachable Henryson, Accessible Middle Scots

De-centering Chaucer, Emphasizing His Contemporaries
Review of A Companion to Chaucer and His Contemporaries: Texts and Contexts, edited by Laurel Amtower and Jacqueline Vanhoutte | Nathanial B. Smith 391

John Lydgate’s “Noble Devices”
Review of John Lydgate: Mummings and Entertainments, edited by Claire Sponsler | Corey Sparks 395

Interlocking Genres: A New Approach to Surveys of Anglo-Saxon Literature
Review of The Cambridge Introduction to Anglo-Saxon Literature, by Hugh Magennis | Eric R. Carlson 399

Handling Medieval Literature

Contributors 407