Cluster on Approaches to Teaching Letitia Elizabeth Landon

Introduction | Kate Singer and Harriet Kramer Linkin  185

Landon in the Canon: An Intertextual Approach | Noah Comet  191

Teaching “Glocal Landon” within British Romanticism | Jacqueline Labbe  201

Letitia Elizabeth Landon’s “Minstrel Annals” and the Romantic Literature Classroom | Roxanne Eberle  211

Retouching Scalar Landon | Kate Singer  225

Landon the Equivocal Canonizer: Constructing an Elegiac Chain of Women Poets in the Classroom | Harriet Kramer Linkin  235

Articles

“Real Research” or “Just for a Grade”? Ethnography, Ethics, and Engagement in the Undergraduate Writing Studies Classroom | Elizabeth G. Allan  247

Writing Our Academic Selves: The Literacy Autobiography as Performance | Johanna Schmertz  279

The Young Archive and First-Year Writing: Using School Stories to Encourage Students’ Scholarly Identity | David Aitchison  295

Cluster on Teaching Multilingual Writers

Linguistic Diversity as Resource: A Multilevel Approach to Building Awareness in First-Year Writing Programs (and Beyond) | Kim Brian Lovejoy, Steve Fox, and Scott Weeden  317
Learning How to Support Multilingual Writers: A Framework for Faculty Education | Jason Schneider 345

From the Classroom

“Ranaway from the Subscriber”: Teaching Slave Narratives Using Wanted Advertisements for Fugitive Slaves | Heidi Elisabeth Bollinger 375

Contributors 387