Theoretical Approaches to the Early Modern: Beyond New Historicism?

Monika Fludernik and John Drakakis, Guest Editors

Introduction: Beyond New Historicism?
John Drakakis, University of Stirling, and Monika Fludernik, University of Freiburg, Germany 495

Shakespeare and Media Ecology: Beyond Historicism and Presentism
Ingo Berensmeyer, Justus Liebig University Giessen 515

Elizabethan Theater Reconstructions Reconsidered: Some Theoretical Aspects of Time-Space-Audience Relationships
Jerzy Limon, University of Gdańsk 539

Early Modern Audiences and the Pleasures of Cross-dressed Characters
Jennifer A. Love, Florida Atlantic University 561

Editing Textual Synergies: New Historicism and “New Textualism”
Jürgen Meyer, Martin-Luther University 591

The Affordances of Hospitality: Shakespearean Drama between Historicism and Phenomenology
Julia Reinhard Lupton, University of California, Irvine 615

The Emblem and Authenticity: A New Historicist Reading of Henry Peacham’s Minerva Britannia (1612a)
Jean-Jacques Chardin, University of Strasbourg 635

Forming History, Inhabiting Form in Marvell’s “Upon Appleton House”
Lauren Shohet, Villanova University 659
Collective Minds in Fact and Fiction: Intermental Thought and Group Consciousness in Early Modern Narrative

Monika Fludernik, University of Freiburg, Germany 689

Notes on Contributors 731

Index to Volume 35 735