In the next issue of Poetics Today—

Narrative Theory and the History of the Novel
Paul Dawson, Guest Editor

Introduction: Narrativizing Novel Studies, Historicizing Narrative Theory
Paul Dawson, University of New South Wales

Exceptionality or Exemplarity? The Emergence of the Schematized Mind in the Seventeenth- and Eighteenth-Century Novel
Maria Mäkelä, University of Tampere, Finland

The Artifactuality of Narrative Form: First-Person Novels in France, 1601–1830
Nicholas Paige, University of California, Berkeley

The Fiction of the Rise of Fictionality
Monika Fludernik, University of Freiburg, Germany

The Threshold of Fiction: Revisiting the Origin of the Novel through Danish Literature
Simona Zetterberg Gjerlevsen, Aarhus University, Denmark

Fictionality, Audiences, and Character: A Rhetorical Alternative to Catherine Gallagher’s “Rise of Fictionality”
James Phelan, Ohio State University

Narrative Order in the First-Person Novel
William Nelles, University of Massachusetts Dartmouth, and Linda Williams, Independent Scholar

Style in the Novel: Toward a Critical Poetics
Daniel Hartley, University of Leeds

Narrative Theory and the Brief and Wondrous Life of Post-Postmodern Fiction
Virginia Pignagnoli, University of Turin

The Novel of Infinite Storage
Marta Figlerowicz, Yale University

Notes on Contributors