Editorial Collective
Charles Armstrong
Tani Barlow
Henry H. Em
Judith Farquhar
Arnika Fuhrmann
James Fujii
Yukiko Hanawa
James Hevia
Marilyn Ivy
Rebecca E. Karl
Thomas LaMarre
Lydia Liu
Donald Lowe
Christopher Lupke
Boreth Ly
Rosalind C. Morris
Naoki Sakai
Jesook Song
Jing Wang
Angela Zito

Advisory Board
Ann Anagnost
Arjun Appadurai
Dipesh Chakrabarty
Chungmoo Choi
Kyeong-Hee Choi
Prasenjit Duara
Norma Field
Gail Hershatter
Huang Ping
Ted Huters
Robert Hymes
Andrew Jones
Elaine H. Kim
Kojin Karatani
Lee Hyo-chae
Li Tuo
Yoshiko Miyake
Tessa Morris-Suzuki
Aihwa Ong
Paik Nak-chung
Vince Rafael
Lisa Rofel
Mark Selden
Gi-Wook Shin
Miriam Silverberg
Mariko Tamanoi
John Treat
Wang Hui
Sylvia Yanagisako
Mayfair Yang
Marilyn Young

Editorial Staff
Tani Barlow, senior editor
James Hevia, associate editor
Donald Lowe, associate editor
Rachel Ross, associate editor
Jesook Song, associate editor
Maya Kovskaya, art editor
Kristy Leissle, manuscript editor

Corresponding Editors
Paik Nak-chung, Ch’angjakkw’a bip’yeg’ong (Korea)
Russell C. Leong, Amerasia Journal (USA)
Li Tuo, Chen Yangu, Horizons (People’s Republic of China)
Bei Dao, Jintian (Today) (People’s Republic of China)
Li Shaojun, Tianya (People’s Republic of China)
Editorial collective, Taiwan: A Radical Quarterly in Social Studies (Taiwan)

Statement of Purpose
positions offers a new forum of debate for all concerned with the social, intellectual, and political events unfolding in East Asia and within the Asian diaspora. Profound political changes and intensifying global flows of labor and capital in the late twentieth century are rapidly redrawing national and regional borders. These transformations compel us to rethink our priorities in scholarship, teaching, and criticism.

Mindful of the dissolution of the discursive binary East and West, positions advocates placing cultural critique at the center of historical and theoretical practice. The global forces that are reconfiguring our world continue to sustain formulations of nation, gender, class, and ethnicity. We propose to call into question those still-pressing, yet unstable, categories by crossing academic boundaries and rethinking the terms of our analysis. These efforts, we hope, will contribute toward informed discussion both in and outside the academy.

positions’ central premise is that criticism must always be self-critical. Critique of another social order must be as self-aware as commentary on our own. Likewise, we seek critical practices that reflect on the politics of knowing and that connect our scholarship to the struggles of those whom we study. All these endeavors require that we account for positions as places, contexts, power relations, and links between knowledge and knowers as actors in existing social institutions. In seeking to explore how theoretical practices are linked across national and ethnic divides, we hope to construct other positions from which to imagine political affinities across the many dimensions of our differences. positions is an independent refereed journal. Its direction is taken at the initiative of its editorial collective as well as through encouragement from its readers and writers.

Acknowledgments
positions acknowledges with gratitude the financial support of the Chao Center for Asian Studies at Rice University. Other generous contributors have included the Office of the Director of the Jackson School of International Relations, the Office of the Associate Dean of Social Science, and the Graduate School of the University of Washington.