Special issue: Chinese Literature across the Borderlands
Edited by DAVID DER-WEI WANG, KYLE SHERNUK, and MIYA QIONG XIE

Introduction: Chinese Literature across the Borderlands
DAVID DER-WEI WANG

“Bordering” National Imaginaries

The Making and Unmaking of Nationalist Literature from the National Margin: Rereading Duanmu Hongliang’s Ke’erqin Qi caoyuan (The Korchin Banner Plains) as Borderland Writing
MIYA QIONG XIE

Shen Congwen’s Idealized Ethnic: Borderland, Ethnicity, and the Spiritual Enchantments of a Modern Master
YANSHUO ZHANG

The Cultural Hybridity of Chineseness: Regional Transgression in Stories of Northern Shaanxi
LEVI S. GIBBS

Ethnic Negotiations

Unsavory Characters: Sino-Tibetan Language Politics in the Fiction of Tsering Döndrup
CHRISTOPHER PEACOCK
Conciliatory Amalgamation: The Politics of Survival in Sinophone Uyghur Writer Padi Guli’s A Hundred Years of Bloodline
E. K. TAN

Treading Poetic Borders in Southwest China and Northeast India
MARK BENDER

Sinophone and Xenophone Articulations

Sinophonic Detours in Colonial Burma: Ai Wu’s Transborder Counterpoetics of Trespass
BRIAN BERNARDS

Unfinished Revolutions: Wei Beihua, Chairil Anwar, and the Limits of Realism of Postwar Mahua Literature
LI WEN JESSICA TAN

Embracing the Xenophone: Siu Kam Wen and the Possibility of Spanish-Language Chinese Literature
KYLE SHERNUK

Forum: Shifting Borders, Languages, and Identities

The Cultural Creation of the Ethnic Korean Minority in China: Focusing on the Portrayal of Local Landscape in Post-1949 Korean-Chinese Literature
JERÔME DE WIT

Between Colonialism and Despotism: Sinophone Nationalist Literature in Japanese-Occupied Inner Mongolia, 1936–1945
JIANING TUO