Editor’s Letter 489
Eric Klinenberg

DOXA AT LARGE

Tahrir: Ends of Circulation  493
Brian T. Edwards

Revolutionary Tactics, Media Ecologies, and Repressive States  505
Ramesh Srinivasan and Adam Fish

Hacker Politics and Publics  511
Gabriella Coleman

TRAJECTORIES OF FINANCE

The Ghost in the Financial Machine  517
Arjun Appadurai

PHOTO-ESSAY

A Flying Man, a Scuttled Ship, and a Timekeeping Device:
Reflections on Ibn Battuta Mall  541
Gökçe Günel

GLOBAL EXCHANGES

Cultural Globalization and the US Civil Rights Movement  551
Steve Spence
Consumption for the Common Good? Commodity Biography Film in an Age of Postconsumerism

Jennifer Wenzel

The Sublime Frequencies of New Old Media

David Novak

Books Received

Contributors
Coming Attractions

Volume 24, no. 1:

Craig Calhoun considers the brouhaha kicked up by the scandal around Qaddafi’s intellectuals for hire; Tom Medvetz discusses the controversy surrounding historian William Cronon’s blog, “Scholar as Citizen”; Fred Turner unpacks the politics of multiscreen media in the Cold War; in discussion with Caitlin Zaloom, Mary Poovey describes her collaboration with Kevin Brine decoding the theoretical structures on which American finance capitalism is built; Ananya Roy unearths the foundations of bottom-billion capitalism; Julia Elyachar uncovers the historical origins of the management fad, “Bottom of the Pyramid”; Peter Redfield explores life expectations and surveys new humanitarian technologies; Vincanne Adams analyzes the ongoing effects of the privatization of disaster relief in New Orleans; in conversation with Andrew Lakoff, Ian Hacking reflects on autism, the making of human kinds, and his recent work on “the mathematical animal”; and more . . .