Critical Inquiry
Defining the state of current criticism through diverse thought, acute commentary, and intelligent debate

"CI performs a service for the profession that is not duplicated anywhere. The public sharing of the very latest in critical theory, in the pages of CI has served to 'democratize' what was once an elite profession within an elite profession. There is no other journal comparable in scope or quality."

—Henry Louis Gates, Jr.

Founded in 1974 by Sheldon Sacks, Critical Inquiry takes an interdisciplinary approach to bring its readers the most important critical research from leading sources and the widest varieties of methodologies.

Publishing contemporary criticism in literature, art, philosophy, history, politics, film, and music, the articles in CI come from leading scholars, critics, and artists from around the world. This allows CI readers to examine a range of topics central to modern culture. The result is a rigorous, stimulating, and sometimes volatile forum.

"OCTOBER, the 15-year old quarterly of social and cultural theory, has always seemed special. Its nonprofit status, its cross-disciplinary forays into film and psychoanalytic thinking, and its unyielding commitment to history set it apart from the glossy art magazines."

Yearly Rates:

- Individual: $30.00
- Institution: $75.00
- Student & Retired: $20.00

Outside USA add $14.00 postage and handling. Canadians add additional 7% GST. Prepayment is required. Send check drawn against a U.S. Bank in U.S. funds, Mastercard or VISA number.

At the leading edge of arts criticism and theory today, OCTOBER focuses critical attention on the contemporary arts and their various contexts of interpretation. Original, innovative, provocative, each issue of OCTOBER examines the interrelationships operating between the arts and their critical and social contexts.

If you prefer reading that inspires you to think but doesn’t do your thinking for you, you should be reading Transition.

Transition started asking questions in 1961.

Published in Uganda, it quickly became the leading journal of African intellectual life. The New York Times called it “Africa’s slickest, sprightliest, and occasionally sexiest magazine.” It delivered 50 fearless issues before ceasing publication because of governmental and economic pressure.

Thirty years later, Transition has returned to carry on in the tough-minded tradition of the original.

Though keeping an emphasis on African and African-American concerns, the new Transition is an international review, covering a broad spectrum of areas, ideas, and interests. It features reviews and commentaries from some of today’s most provocative thinkers. And interviews with some of today’s most controversial figures.

Intelligent but not stiff, high-interest but not high-flown, Transition will stimulate, challenge, and amuse, but never bore. With an editorial board headed by Nobel prize-winning Nigerian playwright Wole Soyinka, it tackles a dynamic range of questions that other magazines are often too timid to ask.
