National Myths in the Middle East

Editors' Introduction
Adina Back, Magnus T. Bernhardsson, Mansour Bonakdarian, and Sally Charnow

FEATURES

Sh'i Narratives of Karbalâ and Christian Rites of Penance: Michel Foucault and the Culture of the Iranian Revolution, 1978–1979
Janet Afary

“The First Boat and the First Oar”: Inventions of Lebanon in the Writings of Michel Chiha
Michelle Hartman and Alessandro Olsaretti

Myth and Counter-Myth: “The Berber” As National Signifier in Algerian Historiographies
James McDougall

REFLECTIONS

Rabab Abdulhadi

Humanizing the Text: Israeli “New History” and the Trajectory of the 1948 Historiography
Ilan Pappe
PUBLIC HISTORY

Unwitting Actors: The Preservation of Fez’s Cultural Heritage
Geoff D. Porter

Reflections on Archaeology and Israeli Settler-Nationhood
Nadia Abu El-Haj

TEACHING RADICAL HISTORY

Teaching Middle Eastern History against the Headlines
Magnus T. Bernhardsson and Sally Charnow

Translating Ideas of Nationhood: A Case Study of Teaching Nationalism and National Identity in Middle Eastern History
Magnus T. Bernhardsson and Sally Charnow

Beyond Culture: Teaching Histories of Islam
Leila Hudson

(RE)VIEWS

After-Images of a Revolution
Negar Mottahedeh

Revisioning the Colonial Middle East
Sarah Gualtieri

The Abusable Past
R. J. Lambrose

Notes on Contributors