The Small Axe Project consists of this: to participate both in the renewal of practices of intellectual criticism in the Caribbean and in the expansion/revision of the horizons of such criticism. We acknowledge of course a tradition of social, political, and cultural criticism in and about the regional/diasporic Caribbean. We want to honor that tradition but also to argue with it, because in our view it is in and through such argument that a tradition renews itself, that it carries on its quarrel with the generations of itself: retaining/revising the boundaries of its identity, sustaining/altering the shape of its self-image, defending/resisting its conceptions of history and community. It seems to us that many of the conceptions that guided the formation of our Caribbean modernities—conceptions of class, gender, nation, culture, race, for example, as well as conceptions of sovereignty, development, democracy, and so on—are in need of substantial rethinking. What we aim to do in our journal is to provide a forum for such rethinking. We aim to enable an informed and sustained debate about the present we inhabit, its political and cultural contours, its historical conditions and global context, and the critical languages in which change can be thought and alternatives reimagined. Such a debate we would insist is not the prerogative of any single genre, and therefore we invite fiction as well as nonfiction, poetry, interviews, visual art, and book discussions.

This issue of Small Axe is dedicated to the memory of Stuart Hall (3 February 1932–10 February 2014). An intellectual of profound and subtle vision and sensibility, and of diverse political and aesthetic preoccupations and commitments, he was at the same time a man of great humor and grace and generosity. We give thanks for his passage among us. He will be mourned for a long time to come.
contents

vii The Last Conjuncture
   David Scott

1 The Refusal of Work:
   From the Postemancipation Caribbean to Post-Fordist Empire
   Christopher Taylor

18 Dictates of Dominican Democracy:
   Conceptualizing Caribbean Political Modernity
   Maja Horn

36 Birth of a Station: Broadcasting, Governance, and the Waning Colonial State
   Alejandra Bronfman

53 Specters in the Forest: Gothic Form and World-Ecology in Edgar Mittelholzer's My Bones and My Flute
   Michael Niblett

69 Oriki fe Madiba
   Kamau Brathwaite

Caribbean Historiography
Guest editors Melanie Newton and Matthew Smith

72 Thinking Haiti's Nineteenth Century
   Laurent Dubois

80 “Awful Pirates” and “Hordes of Jackals”: Santo Domingo/
   The Dominican Republic in Nineteenth-Century Historiography
   Anne Eller

95 Incommensurable Epistemologies?
   The Atlantic Geography of Healing in the Early Modern Caribbean
   Pablo F. Gómez

108 Port of Departure, Port of Return:
   Mapping Indentured Returns to Calcutta
   Nalini Mohabir

123 Beyond Fugitive Speech: Rumor and Affect in Caribbean History
   Lauren Derby
Literary Competition Winners 2013

Poetry

141 Rituals and Remembrances
   Vladimir Lucien

148 Samizdat
   Ruel Johnson

Short Fiction

158 The Paternity Test
   Ruel Johnson

165 Watching Death . . .
   Lesley-Ann Wanliss

Book Discussion: Julian Henriques, Sonic Bodies: Reggae Sound Systems, Performance Techniques, and Ways of Knowing; Alexander G. Weheliye, Phonographies: Grooves in Sonic
Afro-Modernity

173 Afro-philo-sonic Fictions: Black Sound Studies after the Millennium
   Tavia Nyong’o

180 Engendering Phonographies: Sonic Technologies of Blackness
   Alexander G. Weheliye

191 Dread Bodies: Doubles, Echoes, and the Skins of Sounds
   Julian Henriques

202 Contributors