Teaching Anglophone Caribbean Literature

Edited by Supriya M. Nair

“The most challenging aspect of teaching anglophone Caribbean literature—the sheer variety of intellectual and artistic traditions in Western and non-Western cultures that relate to it—also offers the greatest opportunities to teachers.

This volume discusses such topics as the development of multiethnic populations in the Caribbean, oral art forms, religious rituals and beliefs, the genres of slave narrative and autobiography, and the economics of rum.

In the first full-length treatment of Eric Williams as an intellectual, Maurice St. Pierre shows how the former prime minister’s experiences in Trinidad and England radicalized him, leading him both to challenge colonial exploitation of Trinbagonians and to work to educate and mobilize them in the struggle for independence.

The Purchase of the Past in Caribbean Diasporic Fiction
Elena Machado Sáez
$29.50 | PAPER | NEW WORLD STUDIES

Adopting a comparative methodology considering literary trends across Canada, Britain, and the United States and a multilingual focus on literatures of the Caribbean diaspora, Elena Machado Sáez shows how the multicultural book market both facilitates and undermines the historical revisions at the heart of this fiction.
