Crossing the Line

Early Creole Novels and Anglophone Caribbean Culture in the Age of Emancipation
Candace Ward

$29.50 | PAPER | NEW WORLD STUDIES

"Crossing the Line offers a compelling contribution to literary history by tracing the development of the early novel in the Caribbean, a location previously understood as being primarily focused on the physical machinery of slavery."

—Nicole N. Aljoe, Northeastern University

Staging Creolization

Women's Theater and Performance from the French Caribbean
Emily Sahakian

$35.00 | PAPER | NEW WORLD STUDIES

"Sahakian's work is impeccably researched, impressively documented, and original in its bringing together cultural analysis, textual analysis, and performance analysis."—Judith G. Miller, New York University

Puerto Rico A US Colony in a Postcolonial World?

A special issue of
Radical History Review (#128)
Margaret Power and
Andor Skotnes, issue editors

This issue argues that the history of Puerto Rico is important, not just to Puerto Ricans on both the island and the mainland but to all in the United States and especially to progressives.

Learning about Puerto Rico

helps us understand better how US imperialism functions both globally and domestically. Contributors offer reading lists about Puerto Rican history, interviews with prominent figures in the Puerto Rican independence and progressive movements, and deep dives into particular aspects of Puerto Rican history.

TSQ Transgender Studies Quarterly

We're changing gender.

Paisley Currah and Susan Stryker, editors

TSQ offers a venue for interdisciplinary scholarship that contests the objectification, pathologization, and exoticization of transgender lives. Its mission is to examine how “transgender” comes into play as a category, a process, a social assemblage, an increasingly intelligible gender identity, and an identifiable threat to gender normativity.
