Contents

The Border Next Door: New York Migraciones
Special Issue Editors Carlos Ulises Decena and Margaret Gray

Introduction: The Border Next Door: New York Migraciones
Carlos Ulises Decena and Margaret Gray 1

Without Their Children: Rethinking Motherhood among Transnational Migrant Women
Melanie Nicholson 13

“Los hombres no mandan aquí”:
Narrating Immigrant Genders and Sexualities in New York
Carlos Ulises Decena, Michele G. Shedlin, and Angela Martínez 35

A la parada: The Social Practices of Men on a Street Corner
Carolyn Pinedo Turnovsky 55

Anti-immigrant Violence in Suburbia
James E. Claffey 73

New Immigrants in Rural Communities:
The Challenges of Integration
Pilar A. Parra and Max J. Pfeffer 81

La Virgen Meets Eliot Spitzer: Articulating Labor Rights for Mexican Immigrants
Alyshia Gálvez 99

Putting Transnationalism to Work:
An Interview with Filmmaker Alex Rivera
Carlos Ulises Decena and Margaret Gray 131
Contributors

James E. Claffey is a program officer at the Long Island Community Foundation with special responsibility for the Long Island Unitarian Universalist Fund’s grants for progressive social change. He is a founding and current board member of the Long Island Immigrant Alliance.

Carlos Ulises Decena teaches in the Department of Women’s and Gender Studies and in the Department of Latino and Hispanic Caribbean Studies at Rutgers University. His book Tacit Subjects: Dominican Transnational Identities and Male Homosexuality in New York City is forthcoming from Duke University Press.

Alyshia Gálvez received her PhD in cultural anthropology from New York University, where she is faculty fellow/assistant professor in the Center for Latin American and Caribbean Studies. She is working on a book manuscript of her research with Mexican immigrant organizations dedicated to the Virgin of Guadalupe in New York City. She is also editor of Performing Religion in the Americas: Media, Politics, and Devotional Practices of the Twenty-First Century (Berg/Seagull).

Margaret Gray is assistant professor of political science at Adelphi University. She received her PhD from the City University of New York Graduate Center and was a 2005–6 Rockefeller Fellow at Stony Brook University’s Latin American and Caribbean Studies Center. Gray’s work on Latino and labor politics focuses on immigration, race and ethnicity, and transnationalism. She has a decade’s experience working for non-profits on economic justice issues.

Angela Martinez is an independent consultant. She has spent nineteen years working with government and community-based organizations throughout Latin America and in the United States to develop, implement, and evaluate programs on sexual and reproductive health and rights, including HIV/AIDS and sexuality education.
Melanie Nicholson is associate professor of Spanish at Bard College. She is the author of Evil, Madness, and the Occult in Argentine Poetry (University Press of Florida) and has published articles on twentieth-century Latin American poetry in Letras Femeninas, Latin American Literary Review, Chasqui, Revista Hispánica Moderna, and Revista de Estudios Hispánicos. She has also published translations. Nicholson is writing a book on surrealism in twentieth-century Latin American literature.

Pilar A. Parra is a research associate at the Division of Nutritional Sciences at Cornell University and teaches on the health of ethnic minorities in the Cornell Latino Studies Program. Her research deals with international migration and various health-related issues faced by Hispanics in the United States. She publishes broadly in the area of the sociology of health.

Max J. Pfeffer is international professor of development sociology and chair of the Department of Development Sociology at Cornell University. His research and publications span several areas including rural labor markets, rural-to-urban and international migration, and land use and environmental planning.

Alex Rivera is a New York–based digital media artist and filmmaker. He has been a Sundance Fellow and Rockefeller Fellow and is the recipient of a Silver Hugo award. His work addresses concerns of the Latino community through a language of humor, satire, and metaphor. His works have been screened on PBS, at the Museum of Modern Art, the Guggenheim Museum, Lincoln Center, Telluride, the New York Expo, and in many international venues.

Michele G. Shedlin is the Charles T. and Shirley L. Leavell Professor of Health Sciences II and a senior fellow at the Hispanic Health Disparities Research Center at the University of Texas at El Paso. She was formerly principal investigator and deputy director for international and immigrant health research at the National Development and Research Institutes in New York. Dr. Shedlin is a medical anthropologist with extensive experience in reproductive health, substance abuse, and HIV/AIDS research in Latin America and the United States.
Carolyn Pinedo Turnovsky is a President’s Postdoctoral Fellow at the University of California, Los Angeles, for 2005–6, after which she will be assistant professor of sociology at the University of California, Santa Barbara. She received her PhD in sociology from the City University of New York Graduate Center.