
Barbara Browning teaches in the Department of Performance Studies at Tisch School of the Arts, New York University. She is author, most recently, of I’m Trying to Reach You, a fiction-critical novel. Her ukulele covers can be heard at soundcloud.com/barbarabrowning. And she really is still taking orders for children’s balaclavas.

Matthew Carrillo-Vincent is completing his PhD in English and gender studies, writing about male sentimentality in popular culture, at the University of Southern California. He is also working to develop curricula in critical gender and race studies for secondary school students.

Debra Rae Cohen is associate professor of English at the University of South Carolina. A former rock and roll critic, she is co-editor of Broadcasting Modernism (University Press of Florida). A section of her current project, “Sonic Citizenship: Intermedial Poetics and the BBC,” appeared recently in Modernism/modernity.

Michael Coyle is professor of English at Colgate University, founding president of the Modernist Studies Association, and current president of the T. S. Eliot Society. His recent work focuses on Pound, Eliot, and the emergence of radio as cultural form. He is a longtime radio DJ and a record reviewer for Cadence.

Drew Daniel is assistant professor of English at Johns Hopkins University. He is one half of the band Matmos and the author of The Melancholy Assemblage: Affect and Epistemology in the English Renaissance (Fordham University Press) and Twenty Jazz Funk Greats (Continuum).

Patrick Deer is an associate professor of English at New York University, where he focuses on war culture, modernism, contemporary British literature and culture, and the novel and film. He is the author of Culture in Camouflage: War, Empire, and Modern British Literature (Oxford University
Jack Halberstam is professor of American studies and ethnicity, gender studies, and comparative literature at the University of Southern California. Halberstam is the author of five books, including Gothic Horror and the Technology of Monsters (Duke University Press), Female Masculinity (Duke University Press), In a Queer Time and Place (New York University Press), The Queer Art of Failure (Duke University Press), and Gaga Feminism: Sex, Gender, and the End of Normal (Beacon Press), and has written articles that have appeared in numerous journals, magazines, and collections. Halberstam is currently working on several projects including a book on queer anarchy titled “The Wild.”

José Esteban Muñoz is professor of performance studies at Tisch School of the Arts, New York University. He is the author Disidentifications: Queers of Color and the Performance of Politics (University of Minnesota Press), Cruising Utopia: The Then and There of Queer Futurity (New York University Press), and the forthcoming “The Sense of Brown.” His edited and co-edited collections include Pop Out: Queer Warhol (Duke University Press), Everynight Life: Culture and Dance in Latin/o America (Duke University Press), and special issues of the journals Social Text (“Queer Transections of Race, Gender, Nation” and “What’s Queer about Queer Studies Now”) and Women and Performance (“Queer Acts” and “Between Psychoanalysis and Affect: A Public Feelings Project”). He co-edits the book series Sexual Cultures for New York University Press.

Tavia Nyong’o is associate professor of performance studies at New York University, where he teaches critical black studies, queer studies, and cultural studies. His first book, The Amalgamation Waltz: Race, Performance, and the Ruses of Memory (University of Minnesota Press), won the Errol Hill Award. Nyong’o has published articles in venues such as Radical History Review, Criticism, TDR: The Drama Review, Women and Performance, Women Studies Quarterly, Nation, n+1, and New Inquiry. He blogs at bullybloggers.wordpress.com and is co-editor of Social Text.

Deborah R. Vargas is associate professor in the Department of Ethnic Studies at the University of California, Riverside. Vargas is author of Dissonant Divas in Chicana Music: The Limits of La Onda (University of Minnesota Press) and is on the editorial boards of the Journal of Popular Music Studies and Aztlan: A Journal of Chicano Studies. 