Aimé Césaire: Critical Perspectives
Michaeline A. Crichlow and Gregson Davis, Special Issue Editors

Against the Day
Social Movements in Latin America
Verónica Gago and Diego Sztulwark, Editors

The Temporality of Social Struggle at the End of the “Progressive” Cycle in Latin America
Verónica Gago and Diego Sztulwark

Patriarchy from Margin to Center: Discipline, Territoriality, and Cruelty in the Apocalyptic Phase of Capital
Rita Laura Segato

Communal Strategies for Controlling Microfinance in Chuimeq’ena’ Guatemala
Gladys Tzul Tzul

What Neoliberalism Could Not Do, the MAS Can: Divergences and Compatibility between Political Forms and Capital Accumulation in Bolivia
Huascar Salazar Lohman

Conga Mines: Development as Conflict in Peru
Jorge Millones

In This Issue
Aimé Césaire: Critical Perspectives
Michaeline A. Crichlow and Gregson Davis, Special Issue Editors

Introduction
Michaeline A. Crichlow and Gregson Davis

Editing and Editorializing: The New Genetic Cahier of Aimé Césaire
Christopher L. Miller

Forging a Caribbean Literary Style: “Vulgar Eloquence” and the Language of Césaire’s Cahier d’un retour au pays natal
Gregson Davis

Poetry’s Circumstance and Racial Time: Aimé Césaire, 1935–1945
Natalie Melas

Poetic Productions of Cultural Combat in Tropiques
Katerina Gonzalez Seligmann

Cannibalizing Doudouisme, Conceptualizing the Morne: Suzanne Césaire’s Caribbean Ecopoetics
Anny Dominique Curtius

Notes on the Journey toward the Future: Négritude, Abject Blackness, and the Emancipatory Force of Spectrality
Patricia M. Northover and Michaeline A. Crichlow

Césaire’s Apocalyptic Word
John E. Drabinski

Here/Hear Now Aimé Césaire!
Gary Wilder

Cover: Martinican poet and politician Aimé Césaire in 2003. Detail of photograph by Jean Baptiste Devaux. CC BY-SA 4.0