Teaching Human Rights in Literary and Cultural Studies

Edited by Alexandra Schultheis Moore and Elizabeth Swanson Goldberg

“The time for human rights and literature has clearly come. [. . . ] The collection will help to expand thinking—and questions—about these interdisciplinary studies.”

—Domna Stanton, Graduate Center, City University of New York

Teaching Human Rights in Literary and Cultural Studies is a sourcebook of inventive approaches and best practices for teachers looking to make human rights the focus of their undergraduate and graduate courses.

“These wonderful lectures give us the history of the rise of Cultural Studies as seen by its greatest figure. They fiercely remind us of Stuart Hall at his best: crossing disciplinary boundaries, acknowledging inspirations, making bold claims with remarkable precision”
—David Roediger, author of Seizing Freedom: Slave Emancipation and Liberty for All

Stuart Hall: Selected Writings
Edited by Catherine Hall and Bill Schwarz

This series brings together Stuart Hall’s well-known works with previously unpublished ones to create a portrait of his wide-ranging intellectual and political investments. The volumes in the series, which include Hall’s memoir, are edited by major scholars and organized thematically. With this series, Duke University Press is the official home for the writings of Stuart Hall.
