Works and Days 51/52
Academic Freedom and Intellectual Activism in the Post-9/11 University

Edward J. Carvalho, Guest Editor

Featuring:
Stanley Aronowitz, Robert Barsky, Karren Baird-Olson, Derrick Bell, Joe Berry, Michael Bérubé, Marc Bousquet, Eric Cheyfitz, Noam Chomsky, Ward Churchill, Martín Espada, Grant Farred, Norman Finkelstein, Irene Gendzier, Henry Giroux, Susan Searls Giroux, Sophia McClennen, Ellen Messer-Davidow, Robert O’Neil, R. Radhakrishnan, Adolph Reed, Bruce Robbins, Gayatri Spivak, Cornel West, Steven Wexler, Evangeline Wilkes, Jeffrey Williams

Special Double Volume Price:
$10 Individual Copy
$50 Institutional Copy

Mail to:
Works and Days
English Department
Indiana University of Pennsylvania
Indiana, PA 15705

Photo Credit: Jay Finneburgh
Now online at http://reconstruction.eserver.org/081/contents081.shtml

Including interviews with Michael Denning, Barbara Foley, Bill Martin, Ellen Schrecker, and Alan Wald.

How did prior generations of radical intellectuals engage and link up with the broader public? How did the rising (and falling) organization and activism of the "public" itself impact the possibilities for intellectual engagement? Which legacies of public intellectual activity in the U.S. can be related to our contemporary situation, and how? The essays and interviews in Reconstruction 8.1 help us think through these and other pressing questions.

"I am honored to be associated with this special issue of Reconstruction, which contains the freshest, most sophisticated writing on 1930s literary radicalism I have seen in several years."
- Barbara Foley

Forthcoming: Reconstruction 8.4 “From Wright to King and Beyond: International Perspectives”

Reconstruction: Studies in Contemporary Culture (ISSN: 1547-4348) is an innovative online cultural studies journal dedicated to fostering an intellectual community composed of scholars and their audience, granting them all the ability to share thoughts and opinions on the most important and influential work in contemporary interdisciplinary studies. Reconstruction publishes one open issue and three themed issues quarterly, and is indexed in the MLA International Bibliography.