Approaches to Teaching the Works of Jack London
Edited by Kenneth K. Brandt and Jeanne Campbell Reesman

“Outstanding. Necessary for newcomers to London and …for those who have taught the canonical texts before.”
—John Dudley
University of South Dakota

A widely taught icon of American fiction, Jack London is rewarding to teach. London’s biography and celebrity status have garnered considerable attention, but the diverse experiences, political views, and cultural contexts that shaped his writing are key to gaining a nuanced view of his work, as the essays in this volume attest.

Approaches to Teaching
WORLD LITERATURE

Approaches to Teaching the Works of Italo Calvino
Edited by Franco Ricci

“The volume’s readability and bibliographic and pedagogical detail and each essay’s careful framework render the volume valuable for nonspecialists, for Italianists, and for Calvino specialists, too.”
—Tommasina Gabriele
Wheaton College, Massachusetts

Italo Calvino is known for his imagination, humor, and technical virtuosity.

He explores topics such as neorealism, folktale, fantasy, and social and political allegory and experiments with narrative style and structure.

Given the range of his writing, teaching Calvino can seem a daunting task. This volume aims to help instructors develop creative and engaging classroom strategies.

Service Learning and Literary Studies in English

Edited by Laurie Grobman and Roberta Rosenberg

“This is a groundbreaking anthology of new research and practice in the engaged humanities. Readers will find a rich intellectual debate on strategies for growing the public humanities and for renewing the contribution of literary studies to higher education’s mission to strengthen democracy and imbue students with a thoughtful commitment to civic engagement.”

— Gregory Jay
University of Wisconsin, Milwaukee

Service learning can help students develop a sense of civic responsibility while addressing pressing community needs. Whether through a public literacy project that demonstrates the relevance of literary study or community-based research that brings literary theory to life, student collaboration with community partners brings social awareness to the study of literary texts and helps students and teachers engage literature in new ways.
