Approaches to Teaching the Works of Orhan Pamuk

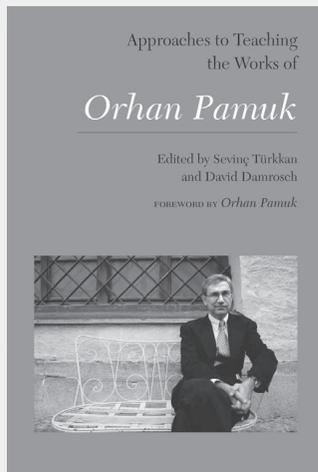

Edited by Sevinç Türkkan
and David Damrosch

FOREWORD BY ORHAN PAMUK

"This is a 'handbook' in its best sense, both for teaching Orhan Pamuk and for reflecting on critical methodology."

—Ülker Gökberk, Reed College

Winner of the Nobel Prize in Literature in 2006, Orhan Pamuk is Turkey's preeminent novelist. His works interrogate problems of modernity and of East and West in the Turkish context. The stylistic and thematic aspects of his novels and his use of intertextual elements make his work rewarding in courses on world literature and on the postmodern novel.

Queer about Comics

A special issue of American Literature (90:2)
Darieck Scott and
Ramzi Fawaz, issue editors

This special issue explores the intersection of queer theory and comics studies. The contributors provide new theories of how comics represent and reconceptualize queer sexuality, desire, intimacy, and eroticism, while also investigating how the comic strip, as a hand-drawn form, queers literary production and demands innovative methods of analysis from the fields of literary, visual, and cultural studies.

Contributors examine the relationships among reader, creator, and community across a range of comics production, including mainstream superhero comics, independent LGBTQ comics, and avant-garde and experimental feminist narratives. They also address queer forms of identification elicited by the classic X-Men character Rogue, the lesbian grassroots publishing networks that helped shape Alison Bechdel's oeuvre, and the production of black queer fantasy in the Black Panther comic book series, among other topics.
