For over thirty years World Policy Journal has been home to both distinguished and emerging thinkers from around the globe. The journal's articles cover the most pressing issues in global affairs, injecting new ideas into global debates and offering innovative policy recommendations. The journal is known for lively, intelligent writing that challenges conventional wisdom with new perspectives on crucial but often underreported world issues.

WORLD POLICY JOURNAL

Without question World Policy Journal is in a class by itself.
—Victor Navasky, The Nation

The journal is one of the few places where one can find fresh arguments by writers who know what they're talking about on subjects where debate is scarce. . . . That's a lot more influential than publishing big names on issues that have already been explored in great detail.

The real intellectual competition to Foreign Affairs.

WORLD POLICY JOURNAL

GLOBAL CHALLENGES. WORLD VOICES. (UN)COMMON SOLUTIONS.

The World Policy Institute is a non-partisan center for global thought leadership focused on emerging challenges, thinkers, and solutions. World Policy fellows, events, policy development, and media outreach, alongside our flagship World Policy Journal, provide a forum for solution-directed policy analysis and debate in support of a sustainable market economy, effective governance, and broadened security strategies.

Why World Policy?

Because we need world views to address global challenges.
Because conventional wisdom is not enough.
Because emerging issues need creative solutions.
Because policy is not just for Washington.

Our Name: World reflects our global perspective, with a focus on policy issues that require cooperation across borders through multilateral, cross-sectoral collaboration and sharing of best practices. Policy reflects our interest in delving in to the root causes of global challenges and seeking solutions to address them.

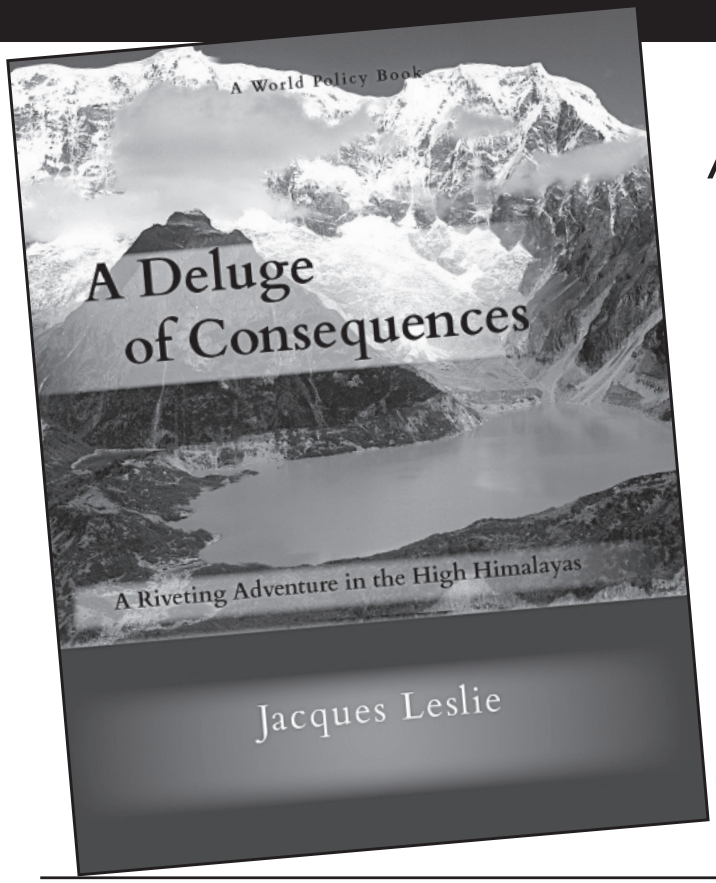
Jacques Leslie's

A DELUGE OF CONSEQUENCES



Available on e-reader

for $1.99

"From high up in the Himalayas, Jacques Leslie brings us a mythical story of peasants in Bhutan laboring in the mountaintops to block the water from melting glaciers that threaten to drown them. Leslie masterfully brings us into the tensions rising between the famously bucolic and peaceful Bhutanese and the brutal reality of staunching a glacier with nothing but shovels and stones in the harsh and unforgiving frozen peaks. With his practiced eye on the details, Leslie tells a story that is luminous in its specificity and compelling in its breadth, evoking the struggle of those who are among the first to feel the hard edge of the sword of Damocles that hangs above all our heads."

- MARK SCHAPIRO

author of The Carbon Hunt, to be published next year, and Exposed: The Toxic Chemistry of Everyday Products and What's at Stake for American Power

"A remarkable report on what climate change means on the roof of the world--and in a place that deserves these horrors less than any spot on earth."

- BILL MCKIBBEN

founder of the grassroots climate campaign 350.org and author of a dozen books on the environment
